TEENAGER

Parent Report Card

Parent/Teen Dialogue

Best Use

As a tool to surface unique areas of need in your teen and/or areas to become more intentional as a parent

Results

Meaningful dialogue on how your teen perceives your parenting

Advance Preparation

- Complete the attached report card on yourself trying to assess what each teen would say. Keep in mind, the goal is to surface your teen's perceptions whether they are accurate or not. Two teens can have entirely different opinions of the same parental patterns. Understanding a teen's perceptions of our actions helps us do a better job of meeting their unique needs.
- Decide upon a context within which to ask your teen(s) to grade you. You might consider the day after your teen brings home a school report card or progress report. Shore up your courage in order to humbly accept input that may surprise you or even sting.

Set It Up

- Say: "Tonight I want you to fill out a report card that will help me understand areas I might need to 'study' a little harder. There are several things the Lord expects me to do as your father/mother and I want your input on how well I am doing."
- Do NOT comment on any of the input. Thank the teen and discuss the input with your spouse and/or a trusted friend who can help you create a "study plan" to strengthen the relationship with your teen.
